POLITICAL

DR. DEVEBER A WINNER.
(Lethbridge News)

Hon. Dr. DeVeber was the unanimous choice of the Liberal convention which met in Oliver's Hall on Wednesday night, thus being no other name submitted to the convention. The convention was a representative one, delegates being in attendance from almost every part of the riding. Mr. Wm. Oliver, president of the Liberal association, occupied the chair and Mr. M. Young acted as secretary. After resolutions expressing confidence in Alberta's new government, and loyalty to the Liberal platform as adopted in Calgary last month had been adopted, the chairman called for nominations for candidate. No other names being proposed, Dr. DeVeber was declared the unanimous choice of the convention. The doctor in rising to respond was received with hearty applause. He thanked the convention for the expression of confidence which he declared was deeply appreciated. He did not care to go into the questions of the day on this occasion, as that would be done later on. He did point out, however, that the enemy were divided into three camps on the school question—some wanting the present system abolished, others wanting it abolished and then re-enacted and others still who wanted it left just as it is. For himself he favored continuing it and keeping it entirely out of politics. At the conclusion of the candidate's address a district Association was formed, after which the meeting adjourned.

NEW ANGLO-JAPANESE TREATY

TERMS ARE OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED

New Compact is to Continue for Ten Years—Summary to the Articles of Agreement

London, Sept. 26.—The foreign office has given out the text of the Anglo-Japanese treaty as follows: The Preamble reads: "The Governments of Great Britain and Japan being desirous of replacing the agreement concluded between them on January 30, 1902, by fresh stipulations, have agreed upon the following articles, which have for their object (a) The consolidation and maintenance of general peace in the regions of Eastern Asia and India; (b) The preservation of the common interests of all Powers in China by ensuring the independence and integrity of the Chinese Empire and the principles of equal opportunities for commerce and industry of all nations in China; (c) The maintenance of the territorial rights of the high contracting parties in the region of Eastern Asia and of India and the defence of these special interests in the said regions."

The articles deal with:

1. The holding of a frank conference between the respective Governments when their interests are in jeopardy.
2. Mutual aid if either is attacked.
3. Japan's protectorate over Korea.
4. Great Britain's right to protect the Indian frontier.
5. No other treaties are to be made prejudicial to the objects named in the preamble.
6. Great Britain's neutrality in the war just closed.
7. In warfare the authorities of both powers to confer.

The treaty effective for ten years, and thereafter only to be terminated on one year's notice and not to be terminated, if either ally is at war. Lord Lansdowne also addressed notes to both the Russian and French Governments notifying them of the treaty and explaining its international bearing.

AN ONTARIO FIRE.

Sturgeon Falls, Sept. 26.—Fire broke out in the Mercantile Company's block about two o'clock this afternoon. It is supposed to have started in the second flat over the post office and destroyed the adjoining general store of the Cockburn Mercantile Co. Loss about $25,000.

WESTERN CROP FOR EXPORT

Ottawa, Sept. 26.—William Hutchinson, who is in charge of the Canadian exhibit at Liege, writes that scientists and manufacturers are studying the display of stone, nickel, mica and carmelum cobalt, and capitalists are enquiring about the territory of the cobalt ores.

Hon. R. L. Borden, leader of the opposition, delivered an address to his constituents at Richmond fair this morning. After referring to the agricultural resources of the county of Carleton, he touched upon Professor Mayor's report to the British Government, and stated that apart altogether from the products of Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, the eastern provinces of the Dominion were able to supply the home demand, thus leaving the entire western crop for export.

AGITATION—"SIMPLY THIS AND NOTHING MORE"

The basic doctrine of Conservatism—"Let well enough alone"—is being most rudely handled in these days by the "Conservatives" of Alberta.

Mr. Haultain, who, though his late conferees in Alberta apparently did not consider him quite so "Conservative" as he might be, appears to have had an intelligent grasp of the meaning and obligations of the name and in public statements admitted that an annual cash subsidy might be preferable to the Provincial control of crown lands, and declared that if made dictator he would not alter the existing school system.

We are naturally not in a position to say how far this conservative tendency of Mr. Haultain went in determining for him the scene of his future political fortunes, but from the late performances of his conferees we are disposed to think it bore a considerable part in relieving him of further responsibility for Alberta's welfare. It is a reasonable guess that in the party deliberations which resulted in the departure of Mr. Haultain from his old stamping ground, the moderation of that gentleman was a theme not overlooked. Certain it is that these conservative remarks jibe badly with the "Conservative" doctrines now promulgated in this Province.

To the "corporation connected" leader of Alberta Conservatives, the "free land for the settler" policy, which Mr. Haultain knew had peopled a wilderness does not seem good and he would agitate for power to terminate this.

To the same gentleman and a portion at least of his following, the school system, which Mr. Haultain, though a dictator, would not alter and could not improve, is not good enough to be conserved by the constitution of the province.

The Alberta Conservatives give evidence at the opening of their career as a Provincial party of having derived nothing from their name save the distinction, and nothing from their party traditions save hunger for office and the habit of fashioning their principles at the force of expediency. The spirit of conservatism of that from which much good has come and in which no evil has been found, has no place in their disposition, and in their dissension-breeding policy the maintenance of tested law and proven custom forms no part. Their language is the language of the disturber, not the preserver, and through it breathes destruction, not development.

To the electors Alberta Conservatives have nothing to offer save agitation, to the Province nothing to suggest but a law suit; to the present a campaign of dissension and to the future a legacy of racial hostility and religious distrust. Learning nothing from history and caring nothing for the future they would plunge the Province into a warfare as useless as meaningless, as meaningless as bitter, as bitter as protracted, if perchance amid the clash of creeds and the conflict of factions they might wrench the spoils of war.

In the platform pyrotechnics of their orators and the lurid effusions of their press even the vagaries of the Red Deer resolutions are ignored and the beginning and end of their policy has now become "agitation." Of constructive statesmanship or administrative development nothing is proposed and even the good which they admit in the statesmanship of the past and present, that they seek the power to destroy.

And to what end? After agitation comes the law-suit and after that the judgment. And what then? Not a word does Mr. Bennett and his followers utter of the future. Their vision terminates with the Privy Council, and their policy ends with the litigation they propose. Do they wish to change the school system or to abolish the free homestead system? Or do they merely wish the power to juggle with these as future exigencies require? These are matters of policy the electors are entitled to know, but upon them Alberta Conserv-vatives are silent. To pronounce upon them might involve the party welfare which for the purposes of this campaign has been placed in its traditional position of the sole actual plank of the Conservative platform.

The issue then has been narrowed down by Alberta Conservatives to a choice between Provincial rights and a protracted fight.

THE EDMONTON CELEBRATION

(Calgary Eye Opener)

The Edmonton inauguration appears to have been a far better arranged affair than the one at Regina. With all their faults the Edmonton people are a hospitable lot of cusses, and know how to entertain with lavishness and with good taste the stranger who is within their gates. On this occasion, if you were anybody at all, they stuck a little white ribbon on the lapel of your coat which meant that nothing was to good for you and that you couldn't spend a cent of your own money. This was true hospitality. The only thing bungled was the platform arrangements at the swearing-in, but everything else was carried out on a broad, whole-souled scale. One cannot but admire Edmonton folk for the tact and savvy they display on occasions of public importance. Their annual fairs, for example, are models of good management and consequently are always a success. Their unlimited nerve, of course, has a good deal to do with it.

At Regina, on the other hand, the inauguration ceremonies were simply grotesque. Floto's circus happened to be in town at the time, and by invitation of the Regina authorities took a prominent part in the procession out to the grounds.

For the benefit of those who may think this is one of our jokes; we may state that it is an actual fact.

First of all came the mayor and council in carriages, followed by the local fire brigade with its band. Then came a string of dromedaries and camels, followed by a little go-cart drawn by an ostrich and driven by a clown, who kissed his hand repeatedly to the ladies and made grimaces at the crowd. Behind the clown came twelve dapple-grey horses drawing a cage in which reposed a sleepy-looking lion, after which came a splendid body of North West Mounted Police, well mounted and beautifully equipped. They were loudly cheered by the crowds lining the sidewalks. On their heels was the circus band composed of the toughest-looking outfit of thugs this side of the line, playing comely-comely-comely in great style. By rights they should have been shot down in their tracks. A cage of wild cats came next, and then an open carriage containing the Lieutenant-Governor and Walter Scott. The wildcats were loudly cheered. Several other carriages drove along in the cortege, followed close by six elephants with mahouts from Oshkosh, Iowa, perched comfortably on their heads. The procession was gracefully rounded off with the callopie, which rendered some ear-splitting music, apparently composed by Radcliffe, the hangman, while on a drunk. The crowds of sightseers followed along roaring with laughter.

An admission of fifty cents was charged by the Regina authorities to enter the grounds, to witness the swearing-in of the warmed-over Lieutenant-Governor.

Snapshots of this ridiculous spectacle can be obtained by writing to any of the Regina bookstores. Although the Lieutenant Governor was warned over, the show itself was raw.

THE LAND ISSUE IN THE NEW PROVINCES

By TRENHOLME DICKSON, McLeod Alta.

Inasmuch as the Conservative conventions of both the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan have made the land clauses of the autonomy bills an issue in the approaching provincial campaign claiming that the lands in the provinces belong to the province and that their administration should have been handed over by the Dominion Government to the provinces, a brief statement of the grounds upon which the Dominion Government acted in retaining this administration in its own hands is opportune.

The claim of the Conservatives is no doubt suggested by the fact that at the time of confederation all the parties to the original contract, that is to say, the provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario and Quebec, each retained her own lands and when at a later date the province of British Columbia was admitted to the union she also retained her lands. But the cases of these provinces and of the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan are not at all parallel. When the above named provinces came into confederation they were already sovereignities. As independent British colonies they had each the complete internal control of their own affairs. Each of them therefore owned her own lands and had a crown lands department for the administration of these lands. But the case of these new provinces is entirely different. These provinces have never owned or controlled the lands in the limits of the provinces. These lands were acquired by the Dominion Government from the Hudson's Bay company by the payment of a large sum of money, and they have ever since remained the property of the Dominion Government and been administered by it. The two cases are therefore not only not parallel, but they are entirely different. When the original provinces came into confederation they retained the control of their lands, but when the new provinces came into the Dominion it cannot be said that they can retain the ownership of their lands for they never have had the ownership of them. Therefore the position that in law and equity these lands belong to the provinces is not tenable.

Again if we look at the provisions of the act of confederation which alone could be the basis of any constitutional right, we find the only provisions at all referring to the lands is contained in clauses 32 which enumerated the classes of matters relating to which the provisions may exclusively make laws. The sub-clause referring to lands is as follows: "(3) The management and sale of the public lands belong to the province and of the wood and timber thereon."

Clearly the exclusive administration is given to the province of all lands belonging to the province, but there is no where in the act any indication what lands do belong to the province nor as we have seen is the claim otherwise tenable that these lands belong to the province.

Not only therefore from a legal or constitutional point of view is the claim contained in the Conservative platform unfounded, but a thorough consideration will lead to the conclusion that on the highest grounds of policy it is advisable that the ownership and administration of the lands should continue to be vested in the Dominion Government.

Precedents exist for this policy. As regards the ownership and administration of the public lands and the creation of new states, the situation of the United States is very similar to our own. Whenever a new state has been created in the American union the federal Government has always retained the ownership and management of the public lands.

And there is precedent also in the history of our own country, and it is given by the Conservatives themselves. When Manitoba was created into a province by the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald, she was not given the ownership of the public lands, on the contrary they remained in the possession of the Dominion Government. And this course was followed by the Government of that time for the very same reason as governed the present Government with respect to Alberta and Saskatchewan. These reasons are best set forth in a report of a sub-committee of the Privy Council appointed to report upon the "Aboriginal demand on the part of the province of Manitoba that the conditions on which she entered the union be changed and that the lands be vested in the province. The following are the portions of that report most directly bearing on this matter, the report having been adopted by an order in council of May 30, 1884.

"The lands of Manitoba held a very different position in relation to the Dominion Government from the lands of the other provinces. Shortly after the union of the old provinces the Government formed from that union purchased at a large price in cash all the rights, title and interest of the Hudson's Bay company in and to the territory out of which the province of Manitoba has been formed.

"It incurred further a very large expenditure to obtain and hold this territory in peaceable possession and at a still further cost which is continuous and perpetual in extinguishing Indian titles and maintaining the Indians so that the Dominion Government has a very large pecuniary interest in the soil which does not exist in respect to any other of the confederated provinces."

Further on the same report says: "The success of the undertakings of the Dominion Government in and for the North West depends largely upon the settlement of the lands. Combined with a great expenditure in organizing and maintaining an immigration service abroad and at home parliament pledged its faith to the world that a large portion of these lands should be set apart for homesteads to all incoming settlers and another portion to be held in trust for the education of their children. No transfer could therefore be made without the most ample securities that this pledged policy shall be maintained; hence in so far as the free lands extended there would be no monetary advantage to the province

Look inside your watch a moment. The balance wheel is making 18,000 vibrations an hour. If it is in good condition, it will move 3,558 miles in a year and requires less than one tenth of a drop of oil to make it run. But it needs that little badly. Don't take chances. CHILD'S BODY FOUND.

A Calgary mystery was cleared up on Sunday when the body of little Mary Josephine McPherson, a six year old child who strayed away some three weeks ago, was found in the upper dam of the Eau Claire Mill. The Herald says:—

Yesterday afternoon a party who were up in the vicinity of the upper dam or lock, noticed the heels of a little pair of shoes sticking up out of the water, and word was immediately taken to the police station and Constable Meiklejohn hurried to the spot.

When they returned to the spot, the body of the little girl was floating face downwards a couple of yards from the shore in still water. The remains were taken from the water and immediately taken charge of by Undertaker Shaver. The bottom of the dam at this point is mud, and some of it adhered to the clothing of the child.

The body was in a perfect state of preservation and her clothing in perfect order, even to the little red ribbon on her hair. The remains were taken down to the undertaker's parlors, from whence the funeral will be held. It being impossible to take the body in its condition to the family residence, only a short distance away.

There was a great deal of mystery about the disappearance of little Mammie, which occurred Sunday, Sept. 3. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. McPherson, with her and her brothers, were over on Prince's Island, and when they were coming home one of the boys lingered behind and the little girl was sent back for him. Neither of them returned, and the mother went to search for them. The boy was found playing around the river bank, but said he did not know anything about his sister's whereabouts. Afterwards he made admissions which led to the belief that she had fallen into the dam, and he mentioned two points, at different times.

From what the boy said it was presumed she had fallen in below the dam, and search parties devoted a great deal of time in the endeavor to locate the missing child. The Eau Claire company let the water out of the lower dam, and as thorough a search as circumstances would permit was made. All efforts were unavailing, and the supposition was that the body had drifted under the logs which fill the dam. Attention was not paid to the water of the upper dam, as it was never supposed she was up in that quarter, so the body of little Mammie remained undiscovered for three weeks. The time is longer than bodies generally remain under water, but in the cold waters of the Bow it is not unusual.

while a transfer would most assuredly embarrass all the costly immigration operations which the Dominion Government is making mainly in behalf of Manitoba and the Territories.

And then further on again:

"The great attraction which the Canadian Government now offers, the impressive fact to the mind of the non-contemplating immigrant is that a well known and recognized Government holds unfettered in its own hands the lands which it offers free and that the Government has its agencies and organizations for directing, receiving, and transporting and placing the immigrant upon the homestead which he may select. And if the immigration operations of the Dominion, which involve so large costs are to have continued success and to be of advantage to Manitoba and the North West Territories your sub-committee deem it to be of the utmost importance that the Dominion Government shall retain and control the lands which it has proclaimed free to all comers. Were there other considerations of sufficient force to induce them to recommend their transfer to Manitoba, and as a consequence and by precedent the provinces holding the lands should conduct their own immigration operations at their own expense."

These reasons strong and forcible as they were then, are even stronger and more forcible today when the current of immigration is flowing into these territories in an unprecedented volume. Indoubtedly the question of a successful settlement policy is the most important matter affecting the interests of Canada today. We have seen as yet only the small beginnings of that policy of settling the vacant lands of the West which has given such an impetus to the progress and prosperity not only of the West itself but of the whole Dominion, and under no possible circumstances would the Dominion Government have been justified in taking any step that would imperil in the slightest degree that policy which it has carried on in the past and intends shall be carried on in the future.

For it has been suggested that the handing over to the provinces of the public domain would not interfere with that policy, that on the contrary the new provinces are just as interested as the Dominion Government in continuing that policy.

But it seems that such a suggestion cannot come from one who considers for a moment the financial aspect of the question. It is understood that it is an essential part of this policy that the public domain shall not be administered for the purpose of revenue. The provinces would therefore be assuming all the burden of the expense of this administration, and all the onerous obligations of a tremendously expensive immigration system without increasing in any way the sources of its revenue. While this would be an undoubted relief to the Dominion Government, it would spell disaster to these young struggling provinces with limited incomes and unlimited outlets for their expenditure. And more than that, the work would not in the nature of things, be carried on in either as effective or as economical a manner by the several provinces as by the central government. In the first place, there would be three provinces (for of course in fairness to Manitoba the decision of Sir John A. Macdonald would have to be reversed and the land handed over to Manitoba too—each of these provinces would have to have its immigration and crown lands departments. This great increase of expense would undoubtedly affect the economy and the inevitable clashing of interests would probably destroy the efficiency.

To continue, therefore, and to guarantee the continuance of this policy which has made this country great and prosperous, the Dominion Government has undertaken to assume all the expense, both of the immigration into the Northwest and of the administration of the public domain on a settlement basis, the two being by their nature so united as to make joint administration most effective, and the compensation that the provinces give to the Dominion is the privilege of administration.

Now, if the undertaking of the Dominion government went no farther than this, it is submitted that these new provinces would have made a very advantageous bargain at Ottawa. But this is by no means the bargain. Though the provinces give so little the Dominion of Canada as a whole receives incalculable benefits. The provinces, if they had the lands, would have no means that are not still open to them, of deriving revenue therefrom, except by selling the lands, but the Dominion can make millions out of the lands and never sell an acre, it has made millions out of the lands without selling an acre. The increase in the customs returns, the increase in trade and commerce, the increase in the manufactures of the country are to be attributed in large measure to the phenomenal expansion and development of these provinces, and the fact that the public domain therein is administered for settlement only and without revenue. The Dominion Government can therefore afford to be generous to the provinces, and that it has been, witness the provisions of the Autonomy acts. Clauses 20 of each of the acts creating the new provinces provides as follows: "Inasmuch as the said province will not have the public land as a source of revenue, there shall be paid by Canada to the province by half-yearly payments, in advance, an annual sum based upon the population of the province as from time to time ascertained by the quinquennial census thereof as follows:

"The population of the said province being assumed to be at present two hundred and fifty thousand, the sum payable until such population reaches four hundred thousand, shall be three hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars.

"Thereafter until such population reaches eight hundred thousand, the sum payable shall be five hundred and sixty-two thousand five hundred dollars.

"Thereafter until such population reaches one million two hundred thousand, the sum payable shall be seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

"And thereafter the sum payable shall be one million one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars.

"2 As an additional allowance in lieu of public lands there shall be paid by Canada to the province annually by half yearly payments, in advance, for five years, from the time this act comes into force, to provide for the construction of necessary public buildings, the sum of ninety-three thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars."

These subsidies are simply found money to the provinces. It represents the probable revenue each province would derive from its administration of the public domain, comprised within its boundaries, but to get such revenue, from the lands the provinces would have to resort to administration of these lands for purposes of revenue, and there would be the end of the free settlement policy and the benefits derived from it by both the west and the whole Dominion.

Now if we compare the revenue we get under the above clause 20 with that received by the other provinces of the Dominion from their administration of their public lands, the advantage is all in our favor. For instance, last year with a population of about 460,000 Nova Scotia received $600,000; Quebec, with a population of about 1,700,000 received $1,300,000; Ontario with a population of about 2,500,000 received $1,500,000. But this is the gross revenue from these sources and all expenses of administration must be deducted, making the net revenue much smaller. Besides, these provinces named are drawing from their capital account, for they are selling their lands, and disposing of their natural resources and it is all included as revenue in the above sums, so that as these assets are disposed of they must soon find their revenue decreasing year by year, whereas ours is not cash paid annually so long as the Dominion shall endure.

It appears therefore that the new provinces have been placed in a position much better than any other of the provinces, and no public man has as yet taken the responsibility of declaring that the sums given to these provinces by the above clause 20 are not as large or larger than any probable net revenue that the province would get from their own administration of the public domain even if they administered them for revenue purposes. In fact, here are the words used by Mr. Haultain in his well known open letter to Sir Wilfrid Laurier of date March 11, 1905.

"But I am not unwilling to admit that an immediate income increasing with population and certain in amount, may not in the long run prove quite as satisfactory as any probable net income resulting from local administration of the public domain."

If any stronger language is necessary to indicate the generosity of the Dominion Government in this respect, take the words of Hon. George E. Foster, found on page 2583 of Hansard.

"He (Sir Wilfrid) will find out one thing I think, and that is that his financial terms as he has placed them in this bill, will bring upon him every province in the Dominion. Already the mutterings are in that direction. Already the tendency is clearly discernible. Take it on any ground you like and by the proposition which you have meted out to the Northwest, you have gone beyond the financial conditions of every other province of this Dominion."

Let us now briefly summarize for the purpose of contrast, the present positions of the new provinces with what they would have been if our Conservative friends had had their way:

We have now
(a) All the benefits of the present energetic and successful immigration policy;

(b) A large amount of net revenue in lieu of lands.

We would have had either.

(1) No revenue from public lands if the free settlement policy were continued, and it could only be continued at triple the expense and less efficiently than at present, and we would have to bear our share of the expense; or.

(2) We would administer the lands for revenue, and curtail the benefits of the free settlement policy to the detriment of both ourselves and the whole Dominion.

—Thirteen new office and house connections were made by the city electric light department, last week. This is the greatest number added in a week since the plant became city property.

—Herb Bowen has purchased five lots at the corner of Peach avenue and Second street, from Mrs. Macaroy of Fort Saskatchewan. The price paid was $15,000. Three years ago two of these lots were profitably sold for $800.

—Mr. McIversen, who has been employed on the C.N.R. grade to Morinville was sent to the hospital this morning suffering from typhoid fever. Mr. Hoggood, the contractor, is ill and the doctors are afraid he will develop typhoid also.

—A. T. Walker, of the International Harvester Co. returned yesterday from the Vermillion country. On Saturday the C.N.R. rails had been laid to a point about sixteen miles east of Vegreville, or 114 miles from Edmonton. Between three and four miles were being laid per day.

—X. S. Eriden, manager for Canada of the Canadian Western Electric Co., with headquarters at Hamilton was in the city this week with the object of disposing to the city the electrical supplies for the Edmonton street railway which had been made for it. Ingle, the former holder of the charter.

—Albertan: The ratepayers of Calgary cut loose yesterday and went after the bylaw to raise $23,000 for the establishment of municipal buildings with a club. The result was not surprising. The unexpected feature of it was the large vote that was polled in favor of the bylaw, which appeared to satisfy neither the people who were in favor of a city hall on the present site or those opposed to a city hall on the present site.

—Albertan: The police station was more like a kindergarten than it was like a police station yesterday morning, when a band of youths from the age of seven years up to twice that age were in the police dock charged with burglarizing a store owned by Mr. Laidlaw on the Eau Claire flats. The case was remanded until Saturday next. But there is not much to do even then. There are only two courts open for a police magistrate, one being to send the children to jail as regular offenders, which would be demoralizing to them, and the other is to let them go, which is equally objectionable. The police magistrate has taken on this matter up with the authorities, but with no results. The effect of continually letting these youthful offenders go is that the police station has no terrors for small boys and to appear before a magistrate, who can only send the offender to jail, which seems objectionable, is regarded somewhat in the light of a joke. The children, the youngest of whom is little more than a baby, went down at the middle of the night and robbed the store.

—Toronto Star: Bishop Newnham is the best-known Anglican in the West. As the Bishop of Moosonee for many years, he has seen a great deal of the country, and the churches were few and far between. In his clerical capacity he travelled hundreds of miles to visit Hudson's Bay posts, and even isolated families. In the winter he travelled by dog sled, and in the summer behind a team of bronchos or in a canoe. He is a self-reliant, bronzed product of the strenuous west, and is beloved from Winnipeg to the Rockies, and from the boundary to Great Slave Lake. Bishop Newnham and Rev. George Lloyd, of Lloydminster, the most popular leader in the Barr colony in the Saskatchewan Valley, are in town in search of clerical aid for the settlements between Battleford and Edmonton. They interviewed Prof. Sheraton of Weyburn yesterday. The idea is to secure a corps of young men to labor under the leadership of Rev. Mr. Lloyd, who is one of the most energetic gentlemen of the cloth in the new Provinces. It was Rev. Mr. Lloyd who held the Barr colony together when its disruption was threatened at Saskatoon.

THE NORWAY-SWEDEN SETTLEMENT

Stockholm, Sept. 26.—In consequence of the agreement arrived at between Norway and Sweden new fortifications may now be erected within ten kilometres from the old city fortress of Kongsvingen. In case of disagreement as to the meaning of this clause, they shall be submitted to arbitration.

The fast clause reads: "This agreement becomes effective immediately. It cannot be broken by only one party to the agreement." Article three refers to reindeer pastures as follows:

"From humanitarian reasons both countries agree to grant each other country's nomadic Laplanders the privileges contained in the amendment of 1885 to the treaty of 1719, which amendment neither country shall demand to be cancelled without the consent of the other."

The delegates agreed on the following order of business: First to each country's parliament the above treaty shall be submitted for ratification subject to the ratification of the other country; to be mutually binding when, as stated herein, after Sweden recognizes Norway as an independent country, dissolved from the union with Sweden.

Second, When the Riksdag and Storting have passed identical ratification bills, a proposition will be laid before the Riksdag: Firstly, on Sweden's part to cancel the Riksdag or charter of 1885 establishing new fundamental laws on the terms that the union of Norway and Sweden is indissoluble and irrevocable; secondly, to consent that the King may recognize Norway as a separate country from Sweden; thirdly, when such recognition is given treaties will in accordance with the Riksdag and Storting's decision consenting to the above agreement, be signed in accordance with the usual international procedure; fourthly, after these treaties are signed Sweden shall immediately notify all the foreign powers with which diplomatic relations are maintained, of her recognition of Norway as an independent country; fifthly, each country shall then request the foreign powers with whom common treaties exist to modify such treaties.
